

Refugee Week

Short Film Festival

Experience an insight into the lives of refugees

Seven short films from local filmmakers exploring the theme of Refugee Week, “A Place to Call Home.” The films will make you laugh, cry and think as you meet refugees from Vietnam, Somalia, Sudan and Burma sharing their journeys, experiences and thoughts of living in Australia. Featuring “See Through Me: Discrimination through the eyes of 10 young Somali-Australians” and “Crazy” (La Trobe University & Foundation House); “Neir Chi Puj (Educated Girls)” by Sudanese newcomer Lina Deng, “Women in Harmony” (Sarah Tartakover) offering a glimpse into the lives of three inspirational women from three different backgrounds living in Melbourne’s Western suburbs; “In My Shoes” and “Just Ridiculous” from the Western Young People’s Independent Network and Melbourne City Mission examining what it’s like to be young, ambitious and have a lot to say when you live in Braybrook; and Footscray filmmaker Amie Batalibasi provides a fascinating look into Chinese chess through the eyes of a group of Vietnamese men in “The Game”.
