

Holly Corpe has worked in refugee resettlement since 2012. This has included roles in policy and research, as well as in the design, development and delivery of local, state and national programming targeting recently arrived migrants and refugees. Holly has presented at a number of conferences regarding innovative social programming for refugee youth, including the Australian and New Zealand Third Sector Research Inc Conference and the Western Sydney University 2nd National Advancing Community Cohesion Conference. The Refugee Youth Employment and Volunteering Program she designed and developed is referenced in the book Reconnected: A Community Builder's Handbook by Andrew Leigh (MP) and Nick Terrell. Holly is the current Chair of the Local Government Multicultural Network and works at Cumberland Council.
