

Shabaz Fattah works at Darebin City Council as a Multicultural and Diversity Officer where he is looking after a range of projects, initiatives and advocacy activities that support Council's efforts as a Welcoming City and Refugee Welcome Zone ensuring that the needs and aspirations of Darebin's culturally and linguistically diverse communities are reflected and included in all of Council's policies, services and programs.

Before joining Darebin Council, Shabaz has worked with several human rights and humanitarian organizations. Before moving to Australia, Shabaz was an Officer for the Rule of Law and Human Rights Program at the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) in Iraq, where he was responsible for UNDP's legal aid projects by leading the organization's legal and protection services targeting the different disadvantaged groups such as Refugees.